raise himself from his bad. He sought aid from physicians at home and in Europe, but in vain; his case was pronounced hopeless by thousands, and it was by accident that he suoceeded in curing himself. Since he has been practicing medicine, his success in such cases has been unrivalled. He has been aware of the incredulity of the public, and comsequently said nothing through the press of his own case, until the character of the medicine was fully established by its success, as shown by the certificates which have neen by its success, as shown by the certificates which have neen I subjoin the certificate of Prof. M. GAHBERT, of Memphis, Tenn, with whom I often advised during the time of my Suffering.

Menoms, Tenu., April 17, 1552.

I hereby certify that I have been acquainted with Dr. J.

N. Bledsoe and some years ago he was reduced I of except lower than I have ever seen any one that afterwards recovered, with what I supposed to be Despepsia and Liver affection, and after trying the prescriptions of many Physicians in this as well as other countries, without relief, he finally succeeded with a preparation of his over in being restored to good with a preparation of his over in being restored to good. with a preparation of his own in being restored to good health.

M. GABBERT, M. D.

Physicians are requested to try this preparation. We sel satisfied it will sustain the character we give to it in this Dr. Bernson:—I take the liberty and fell it to be my duty to recommend to all persons suffering from disease of the stomach and bowels, your Alterative Compound, as a very seperior medicine. My son, aged 15 years, had been under medical treatment about five years for dyspepsin and diarrhea—when having almost despaired of his recovery, I concluded to try your Alterative, two bottles of which, I believe, entirely cured him.

MICAJAH CAYCE.

HUNTSVILLE, Cct. 17, 1852.

Dr. Blencor:—Some time has clapsed since I gave a certificate that my wife had been greatly benefited by your Alterative Compound. I now take pleasure in saying to the public, that my wife had for three or four years been subject to the worst kind of smells of gramp in the storage. the public, that my wife had for three or four years been subject to the worst kind of spells of cramp in the stomach from dyspensia. I had tried of several whom I thought to be the best physicians in the place and a great many differen medicines, with momentary relief. Being persuaded to try your alterative compound, I did so—and I am happy to say that it has entirely cured her; and I would conscientiously recommend it to all persons suffering from diseases of the liver and dyspensia.

N. B. ROBERTSON.

Dr. Bledson—Having seen the publication of your Alterative Compound, I think it my duty to say to the public, that I had been for years subject to spells of Cramp Colic, in its worst form; that I had tried almost every thing that is given by physicians, and never found any thing that would certainly relieve me, until I tried the above medicine, which has relieved me in every attack in less than in hour.

WM. B. LLOYD. HUNTSVILLE, Sept. 29, 1851.

DR. BLEDSOE:—I feel that I should fall short of my duty to you and to those who are adlicted, were I not to further recommend your Alterative Compound. It has entirely re-lieved ms, so that I have not had cause to take anything in leved me, so that I have not had cause to take anything in two mouths. I can eat anything I want with impunity, and believe my health is as good as it ever is at my advanced age. Should I ever suffer from dyspepsia again I shall be sure to call on you. I am very respectfully your friend. ELIZABETH J. HARWOOD.

Hornyman, Ala., August %4, 1851.

This is to certify, that I had suffered for many years with Dyspepsia and Diseases of the Liver. Physician after Physician had prescribed for me without my receiving any benefit, when I commenced the use of Dr. Bledsoe's Alterative Companied, which can be required by and Liverground of the second of the Compound, which cured me soundly, and I recommend it because of the same happy effect upon others of my acquaint ance.

DR. WINTERS had lost nearly all of his hair and had been bald for many years; by the use of three lost-tles of the Magnetic Olistaceus, had his hair entirely restored, and now has as beautiful a head of hair as any man could wish. His age is about 50 years.

A son of Mr. Warren, of this town, 14 years of age, had been afflicted with the Asthma from his cradle. He had the benefit of the best medical advice that a loving and wealther father could amount with It was one of wealthy father could procure, without avail. It was one of the most aggravated cases I ever saw; he was emaciated al-most to a skeleton. By the use of a few bottles of the Ointment he was thoroughly cured, and for seven months past has enjoyed robust health.

This was an extreme case of inflammation of the spleen, of long standing; has a variety of treatment from no less than sight different physicians, without receiving benefit—was cured by the use of only four bottles of the Magnetic Ointment. This was four months ago and the lady (a Mrs. Dunham,) is still in good health, and able to attend to her usual bousehold duties. There treated two cases of Obronic Sure Eyes with the Cintment, both of the patients so nearly blind, as to need an attendant to lead them from place to place. One of them had been afflicted 1s years, the other about 9 years. They had tried the best physicians in the State, without benefit, and one of them had been under the treatment of the celebrated Dr. Muzzy, of Cincionati, for eighteen mouths, and had expended hundreds of dollars in vain efforts to effect a core. They are now by use of the Magnetic Ointment, nearly or quite cured; and are able to read and attend to any ordinary business. I have used the Ointment in a number of cases of Piles, and in no case loss if failed of picing immediate relief and penerally a permanent cars. IMPORTANT TO IRON MANUFACTUhas discovered a process for manufacturing wrought iron directly from theore, with wood or mineral coal, styled by directly from the ore, with wood or mineral coal, styled by him an ore-welding furnace; (an improvement in the manufacture of iron long scoght after, but never successfully attained until Mr. Beuton's discovery, and which produces at a single heat the best quantity of bhoms, at a less cost than pig iron is now usually made. Letters Patent have been granted him for his discovery, and we are the appointed agents for the sale of rights, and its introduction throughout the West; and as the present high price of iron is inducing many capitalists to invest in its manufacture, without being aware of the great advantages this new and valuable invention has over any other known mode, we think it but subserving their interest to thus early impress upon them the importance of an examination of the merit of this late invention before embarking in any other made for making iron, ascuring them of its entire success and practicability, as demonstrated by the furnaces naw in successful operation after this plan.

It is not our purpose in this advertisement to speak particularly of the almost incalculable advantages in a process possesses over all other modes for making Iron, (as this is contained in our circular, which we will be pleased to mail to the address of any one interested in the matter,) but to call the attention of those about investing in the manufacture of Iron, and respectfully invite an examination of the furnace we are erecting in this city, and which will be in operation by the 5th June next, or to the furnaces of the American Iron Company in Newark, New Jersey, now operating with complete success.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Last Moments of "L. R. L." A degree of mystery has hung around the death of this lamented poetess. In the year 1838, as our readers are aware, Miss Landon was married to Captain Maclean, the Governor of Cape Coast Castle. She had scarcely been two months in Africa, when she was found dead in her room, with a bottle of prussic acid at her side. This mysterious and tragic circumstance is fully explained in the following extract from a review, in an English paper, of a late work by Captain Cruffel shank upon his residence in South Africa:—

Few passages in the personal history of modern literature have been more discussed than the various circumstances connected with the sudden death of this popular favorite, and, as the public is neither ample in amount nor unimpeachable in character, we avail ourselves of such new light as Mr. Cruickshauk may afford us. His means of knowledge were, in any case, first-rate. He speaks of himself "as one who had the happiness of sceing a good deal of this accomplished lady, upon the coast, who enjoyed and keenly felt the fascinations of her society, who only ten hours before her death had sat and listened with a rapt attention to her bril-liant sallies of wit and feeling, who was present at the investigations consequent upon her sudden death, whose eyes were the last to rest upon those rigid features so recently beaming with all the animating glow of a fine intelligence, and who, with a sorrowful heart, saw her consigned to her narrow resting place. * * I will endeavor to place in its true light a short account of her too brief sojourn in Africa.

When Mrs. Maclean arrived at Cape Coast, there was no European indy then at the settlement, and her husband was in very bad health. Mr. Cruickshank was also ill. An invitation to visit the governor and his wife found him in bed, and it was some days before he could venture out to the castle. I sent in my name by the servant, and, immediately after, Mrs. Muclean came to the hall, and welomed me. I was hurried away to his bed-room, Mrs. Muclean saying, as she tripped through the long gallery, 'You are a privileged person, Mr. Cruickshank, for I can assure, it is not every one that is admitted here,' I took a seat by the side of his bed, upon which Mrs. Maclean sat down, arranging the clothes about her husband in the most affectionate manner, and receiving ample compensa tions for her attentions by a very sweet and expressive smile of thankfulness. We thus sat and chatted together for some hours, Mrs. Maclean laughingly recounting her experience of roughing it in Africa, and commenting, with the greater good-humor and delight, upon what struck her as the oddities in such a state of society. She pointed to a temporary hed, which had been made for her on the tioor, and said Mr. Maclean's sufferings had been so great for some nights, that the little sleep which she had got had been taken there. I declined to occupy any apartment in the castle, but promised to call daily, during my stay in Cape Coast, to pass a few hours with them.' We pass over the daily record of social inter course. Mr. Cruickshank was about to return to England for his health. Mrs. Muclean was employed in writing sketches of Scott's heroines, for the Book of Beauty, and as she sometimes found it difficult to fix her thoughts on a particular subject, "she seemed to have some alarm that the climate was affecting her."

Mr. Cruickshank writes:- "As the day drew near for my departure, she occupied herself more and more in writing to her friends in Eugland. It had been arranged that the vessel should sail on the forenoon of the 16th of October, and I agreed to dine and spend the evening of the 15th with the governor and his lady. It was in every respect a night to be remembered. * * * At 11 o'clock I arose to leave. It was a fine clear night, and she strolled into the gallery, where we walked for half an hour. Mr. Maclean joined us for a few minutes, but not liking the night air, in his weak state, he returned to the parlor. She was much struck with the beauty of the heavens in those latitudes at night, and said it was when looking at the moon and the stars that her thoughts oftenest reverted to home. She pleased herself with thinking that the eyes of some beloved friend might be turned in the same direction, and that she had thus established a medium of communication for all that heart wished to express. 'But you must not,' she said 'think me a foolish, moon-struck lady. I sometimes think of these things oftener than I should, and your departure for England has called up a world of delightful associations. You will tell M. F., however, that I am not tired yet. He told me that I should return by the vessel that brought me out: but I knew he would be mistaken.' We joined the governor in the parlor. I bade them good night. promising to call in the morning to bid them adicu.

I never saw her in life again." At breakfast, next day, Mr. Cruickshank was alarmed by a summons: "You are wanted at the castle; Mr. Maclean is dead!" said the messenger. Hurrying to the castle he found that it was not Mr. but Mrs. Maclean—whom he had left the previous night so well-was no more. "Never," he says, "shall I forget the horror-stricken expression of Mr. Muclean's countenance. We entered the room where all that was mortal of poor 'L. E. L.' was stretched upon the bed. Dr. Cobbold rose up from a close examination of her face, and told us all was over; she was beyond recovery. My hear! would not believe it. It seemed impossible that she, from whom I had parted not many hours ago, so full of life and energy, could be so suddenly struck down. I seized her hand, and gazed upon her face. The expression was calm and mean less. Her eyes were open, fixed, and protruding was simply this:—It appeared that she had risen, and left her husband's bedroom about seven o'clock in the morning, and proceeded to her own dressingroom, which was up a short flight of stairs, and c tered by a separate door from that leading to the bedroom. Before proceeding to dress, she had oc-cupied herself an hour and a half in writing letters. She then called her servant, Mrs! Bailey, and sent her to a store-room to fetch some pomatum. Mrs. Bailey was absent only a few minutes. When she returned, she found difficulty in opening the door, on account of a weight which appeared to be pres sing against it. This she discovered to be the body of her mistress. She pushed it aside, and found that she was senseless. She immediately called Mr. Maclean. Dr. Cobbold was sent for; but from the first moment of the discovery of the body on the floor, there had not appeared any symptoms of life Mrs. Bailey further asserted that she had found a small phial in the hand of the deceased which she removed, and placed upon the toilet-table. Mrs. Maclean had appeared well when she sent her to fetch the pomatum. She had observed in her no appearance of unhappiness. Mr. Maclean stated that his wife had left him about seven o'clock in the morning, and that he had never seen her again ble, and asked Mrs. Bailey where it had come from She told him that she found it in Mrs. Maclean's hand. This phial had contained Scheele's preparation of prussic acid. His wife had been in the habit of using it for severe fits or spasms, to which she was subject. She had made use of it once on the passage from England, to his knowledge. He was greatly averse to her having such a dangerous medicine, and wished to throw it overboard. She entreated him not to do so, as she must die without it. There had been no quarrel nor unkindness between him and his wife. "Dr. Cobbold, who had been requested to make a post-mortem examination, did not consider it at all necessary to do so, as he felt persuaded she had died by prussic acid. He was led to this conclusion from the appearance of the eyes of the deceased; and he believed that he could detect the smell of the prussic acid about her person. My own evidence proved that I had parted from Mr. and Mrs. Maclean at a very late hour on the evening before, and that they appeared then upon the happiest terms with each other. There was found upon her writing-desk a letter not yet folded, which was scarcely dry at the time of the discovery of her death. This letter was read at the inquest. It was for Mrs. Fagan upon whom she had wished me to call. It was written in a cheerful spirit, and Who does not know that Lorder 8 does not know that the finest Lorder 8 does not know that Lorder 8 does not know t that 'she died from an overdose of Scheele's preparation of prussic acid, taken inadvertently. Cruickshank, concurred in this verdict at the time, but since his arrival in England he has found rea son "to doubt of its correctorss." He now entertains the opinion that death was caused by "some sudden affection of the heart." We refrain from any comment on either facts or opinions, and will content ourselves with adding a picture of the last scene of all, from an eve-witness:

—"In those warm latitudes, interment follows death with a haste which often cruelly shocks the feelings. Mrs. Maclean was buried the same evening within the precincts of the castle. Mr. Topp read the in-neral service, and the whole of the residents assisted at the solemn ecremony. The grave was lined with walls of brick and mortar, with an arch over the coffin. Soon after the conclusion of the service, one of those heavy showers, only known in tropical climates, suddenly came on. All departed for their houses. I remained to see the arch cumpleted. The bricklayers were obliged to get a covering to protect them and their work from the air. Night had come on before the pavingstones were all put down over the grave, and the werkmen finished their business by torchlight. How sailly yet does that night of gloom return to my remembrance! How sad were then my thoughts, as wrapped up in my cloak I stood beside the grave of "L. E. L., under that pitiless torrent of rain! I fancied what would be the thoughts of thousands in England, if they could see and know the meaning of that flickering light, of those busy workmen!-I thought of yesterday, when, at the same time, I was taking my seat beside her at dinner, and now, oh, how very—very sad the change!"

The Legislature of Virginia has nobly appropriated fifty dollars for each free person of color who may emigrate to Liberia, without regard to age; provided the person was free at the time of the passage of the Act; satisfactory evidence of which must be presented to the Colonization Board; for the organization of which the law provides, and which was duly organized in the City of Richmond on the second day of May. It appears that the sum of $2,400 has already been paid by said Board, under the operation of this law, for the transportation of forty-eight emigrants in the ship Banklee. The law appropriates $40,000 per annum, for five years, to be expended in the transportation of Negroes, now free, to Liberia, but not more than $50 is to be applied to the transportation and subsistence of each emigrant. Which sum is to be paid to the Colonization Society of Virginia, when evidence is produced that such emigrant has been embarked for transportation, or has actually been transported to Liberia. This is a noble act, of a noble State. Virginia furnished the first President, and many other distinguished citizens of the Republic of Liberia as well as the father of our own country. We hope by the assistance thus afforded by the State, many others may be enabled to emigrate to that young, but flourishing republic; where, by a course of industry, they will not ordy prove to the world, that the liberality of the state has not been misapplied; but that the colored man has a capacity for self-government, when placed where he can be free indeed.

Will not our goodly state of Tennessee take her stand nobly by the side of the Old Dominion in this work of Philanthrophy and Christian benevolence at the next meeting of our Legislature? We rejoice to see it. The free person of color, is not, cannot be free among us. It is impossible. No matter what his capacity may be, he cannot be elevated in society. His color gives him a position in society above which he cannot rise. The laws do not allow him to vote. He cannot hold un office of honor or profit. The laws of social life bar him from the refinements and elevating influences of the educated. His only associations are among the slaves; or the ignorant and degraded free persons of his own color. No man can rise and he free without the refining influences of social intercourse with educated christian society. Then too, look at the corrupting and disquieting influence the presence of such free persons has upon the slave. The slave at his toils sees the free man loitering about ... This he thinks is noble; and not dreaming of his mise-
